It is highly probable that at some point in time your data has passed through technology from DigitalRoute. If your turn on the heating in your house, travel by airplane, buy a train ticket or make a call with your phone from anywhere in the world. There is a great chance that the company behind these services use our technology as an enabler. You may not know about us, but the companies you trust to provide these daily services certainly do.

At our head office, located in the center of Stockholm, you will have the opportunity to work on some of today's most existing problems in big data and real-time data stream processing and apply DigitalRoute's magic.

You will join an amazing team that has a 17-year history of product innovation in high performance computing, data integration and machine learning. Few other companies on the planet can boast the proven extreme performance and scalability that DigitalRoute's products do and this is a chance to work among the best.

The Role:

Do you love agile? Perhaps you already are a Scrum master, or perhaps you are a developer/tester wanting to try on an agile role. Either way read on to find out why DigitalRoute is the place for you.

We think you:

- Love team work and are always on the lookout for new ways for the team to improve
- Are not afraid to join in discussions and speak your mind
- Are comfortable with Agile methodologies and ways of working, having a couple of years of experience either working as a Scrum master or being a developer/tester in an agile team
- Get excited about facilitating meetings, using post-it notes or talking about story points
- Experience coding/testing high performance real-time distributed systems
- Are knowledgeable or at least curious about cloud solutions
- Possess excellent written and verbal communication skills in English

As a Scrum Master at DigitalRoute you will:

- Be part of a team, working both as a Scrum Master and as a developer 50/50
- Facilitate all the teams scrum processes such as daily standups, sprint planning and retrospectives
- Act as the shield against disturbances and keep the team focused on delivering with quality while meeting the requirements of our PO

- Join the weekly Scrum of Scrums, Product development meetings and agile lunches where we discuss, argue and drive change to the company ways of working culture
- Work with technologies such as Docker, Kubernetes, AWS, MongoDb, Kafka

Are you our new colleague?

Apply now,

We look forward to you joining us!
